AC-SE-03 Speech to Speech Video

Telephone access service for people with speech disabilities

Speech to Speech telephone service uses trained communication assistants as revoicers for people who have trouble being understood on the telephone. Dr. Bob Segalman began a one-man mission to establish Speech to Speech in California during the early 1990s. His efforts have benefited all people with speech disabilities, giving them telephone access like never before. In 1998, the FCC proposed a mandate that all states initiate a Speech to Speech service.

The Speech to Speech video features clinicians, researchers, communication assistants, business people and individuals with speech disabilities, plus reenacted and actual Speech to Speech telephone calls. Ideal for anyone interested in learning how Speech to Speech works. 11 min. video, closed captioned. 1999.

Working with low-functioning children

DVD
AC-OND-02

Book & DVD
AC-ONBD-02

One-on-One Book presents structured learning activities, step-by-step, for students who are non-compliant and who have minimal skills. For professionals and parents working with low-functioning children with autism and other developmental disabilities.

Developed by author Marilyn Chassman, this program chronicles a five-year process of homeschooling her son Brian, a child with autism who exhibited very aggressive behaviors and did not communicate. The One-on-One manual provides over 30 structured learning activities, each presented step-by-step. All activities are illustrated and presented in detail so it's easy for you to recreate them at home or in the classroom.

Chassman's approach focuses on breaking down each task to its basic components and then linking them together, one step at a time. Covers dealing with aggression, record keeping, communication, self-help, fine and gross motor skills and sensory toleration. Covered spiral bound book, 116 pgs., 1999.

One-on-One DVD highlights teaching techniques as it follows Chassman working with her son over time. Watch how she breaks skills into small steps and how Brian develops skills and behaviors. DVD, 25 minutes, CC, 2000.

Working with Hostile & Resistant Teens DVD or VHS

Manage difficult students grades 7—12 in and outside the classroom

Manage difficult students grades 7—12 in and outside the classroom. Working With Hostile and Resistant Teens provides school-tested anger management strategies developed by therapist Steven Campbell. Role plays with actual at risk teens acting out their own personal histories of aggressive and manipulative behavior bring scenarios to life.

Campbell leads the role plays, then provides an analysis of each one showing viewers how to avoid being drawn into the “game triangle,” which consists of a victim, persecutor and rescuer. By avoiding the game, you reduce emotional content and are able to focus more clearly on the student’s behavior.

Working With Hostile and Resistant Teens was originally released in 1993 and reformatted for DVD in 2004. Two 45 min. VHS videos or one 90 min. DVD, each with a guide.

Eleanor at 80 Program DVD

Training program on mediating complex family issues in eldercare

This all-new program consists of a DVD and accompanying Facilitator's Guide.

This program profiles a fictitious Eleanor Stein, who at 80 years old experiences an abrupt decline in health. Eleanor and her family struggle with the resulting challenges until they contact a professional mediator, who helps them navigate through the landscape of personal issues and create a successful action plan. This narrative serves as a backdrop for a training program focusing on mediating complex family issues in eldercare.

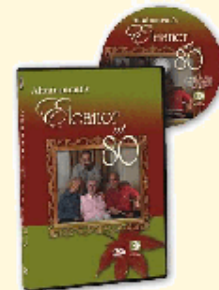

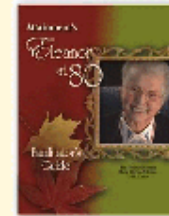

Developed by Drs. Harry and Lisa Webne-Behrman, this DVD details the mediation process including: Setting ground rules, active listening, identifying key issues, exploring options and building an action plan. Step-by-step analysis by Harry and Lisa help families work through difficult issues in eldercare.

The DVD also includes "Extra" interview footage featuring gerontologist Dr. Jill Steinberg and geriatric social worker Marie Hornes. They discuss a wide range of topics concerning older adults and their families.

The Facilitator's Guide gives a detailed explanation of DVD scenes with useful insights into effective communication and conflict resolution strategies. The authors stress how to identify family concerns before a crisis occurs.

DVD, 90 min., CC, 2006; Facilitator's Guide, 48 pgs., 2006.

Job Coaching Strategies is a concise, goal oriented staff development program. The manual and video follow the chronology of a successful job placement—from getting to know your client to maintaining employer relations. The manual features real-life examples to illustrate techniques and strategies, and provides useful forms like functional assessments and work site analysis. The video focuses on the successful supportive employment of Nick, a young man with multiple disabilities. Interviews with his parents, job coach and employer reinforce concepts discussed in the manual. Author Steve Tenpas has fifteen years experience teaching job coaches. Spiral bound, 122 pgs., includes a printable PDF on a Win/Mac CD. 2002.

Working with Hostile & Resistant Teens DVD or VHS

Manage difficult students grades 7—12 in and outside the classroom

Manage difficult students grades 7—12 in and outside the classroom. Working With Hostile and Resistant Teens provides school-tested anger management strategies developed by therapist Steven Campbell. Role plays with actual at risk teens acting out their own personal histories of aggressive and manipulative behavior bring scenarios to life.

Campbell leads the role plays, then provides an analysis of each one showing viewers how to avoid being drawn into the “game triangle,” which consists of a victim, persecutor and rescuer. By avoiding the game, you reduce emotional content and are able to focus more clearly on the student’s behavior.

Working With Hostile and Resistant Teens was originally released in 1993 and reformatted for DVD in 2004. Two 45 min. VHS videos or one 90 min. DVD, each with a guide.
