Grades 2-7

You won't find a more interactive, fun, and effective approach to writing anywhere. Young learners develop creative and factual writing skills as they complete 9 exciting activities. They can build pictures and write stories to go along with them, design comic strips, write captions, compose play scripts, and write and record voice-overs for video stories. Easy-to-use tools and banks of words, pictures, and examples also help kids create shape poems, arguments, biographies, and diary entries. Simply click on an item in the bank to insert it into the composition area, then type away! Extracts from works of literature are included in each activity to inspire young writers and serve as a reference. Words, pictures, and examples can also be added to the program to create custom activities. Teacher support material, including overviews of each activity and discussion, research, and writing points, are included.

Grades 2-7, Inclusion

Young students become young journalists in the Writers' Workshop. Students develop factual and creative writing skills in a stimulating environment. Build a face and then write a story about your character. Join the Newsgroup where a bank of video shorts, photos, and reporting assignments inspire young writers to create their own sound-track scripts. Write captions, broadcasts, and reports for newspapers and magazines. Research news stories and read from a teleprompter. Students feel like professional journalists while they learn to capture their audience's attention with concise reporting.

Grades 6-12, Inclusion

The local newspaper has commissioned you to write an article about global warming...do you accept? This interactive program provides a bank of media assignments to inspire young journalists. Students enter the multimedia newsroom, record audio files, and broadcast their work. Each assignment helps to develop skills in diction and descriptive language usage, and gives them helpful advice on capturing the attention of readers. Compose feature articles, profiles, and autobiographies. A comprehensive library and a web link are readily available. You can even choose to run the program in English, French, Spanish, or German at the touch of a button.
